The Problem

Growing a surveying and mapping buisness means investing in new data collection technology, hiring exceptional talent to serve your customers, and managing your overhead rate to stay competitive in your area of expertise. Many survey and mapping firms struggle with building data redundancy, maximizing powerful computing resources, and managing the continuous need to invest in 3rd party software solutions that are not integrated.

The Solution

Pointerra3D helps companies reduce reliance on expensive legacy software and creates a centralized, cloud-based platform for storing, managing, and sharing massive datasets including lidar, photogrammetry, and CAD. With real-time access to the latest version of your data, your team and clients avoid costly mistakes and re-work caused by outdated files.

Pointerra3D's core technology provides a fast and easy way to visualize, control, process, quality assess, and share valuable survey and mapping data.

Pointerra3D lets you significantly improve workflow time management and shift the focus from manual internal 3D desktop tasks to external high value client service and new business development.
